

BS 8901:2009 Internal Auditor

Training course description

With no two events the same, how is it possible to keep a management system up to speed in attempting to improve the sustainability of each individual event? The vital role of auditing BS 8901:2009 management systems and the necessary skills to deliver such auditing effectively are covered in this two-day non-residential BS 8901 internal auditor training course. Delegates who attend the course are trained in auditing methodologies, the details of the standard and ways in which they can benchmark their own understanding of best practice in sustainable development.

The course structure incorporates interactive group work, discussions and presentations, while supporting templates are available for attendees to take away. The course includes an in-depth examination of what is required for any external certification / registration process.

Who should attend?

- Individuals and managers directly involved in the auditing of BS 8901 systems
- Management representatives and project managers involved in the implementation of BS 8901
- NB: Those seeking to extend their existing skills in auditing Environmental, Health & Safety, or quality systems should consider attending the BS 8901 Auditor Conversion Course (click here for details)

This course will enable you to:

- Undertake the design and delivery of an internal audit against the requirements of BS 8901:2009
- Follow through audit trails, identify discrepancies from performance and standard requirements, analyse the root cause of non-conformities and recommend corrective actions at the appropriate level of the system
- Identify the relationship between auditing BS 8901:2009 (sustainability for events) ISO 14001:2004 (environmental management), ISO 9000:2008 (quality management) and BS OHSAS 18001:2007 (Health & Safety management)
- Practical steps for monitoring and measuring outputs at events
